County Planning Commission Gets Fact Book Chapters Started

By Ryan Schlehner

The Mackinac County Planning Commission met with representatives of U.P. Engineers & Architects to review the first few chapters of the county's new fact book at a regular meeting Wednesday, June 1. When completed, the fact book will include 10 chapters on topics such as historical and archaeological significance of the county to its land use, population, agriculture and natural resources, and economic composition and infrastructure. It is the first step to complete a new county-wide master plan for future land and economic development.

U.P. Engineers & Architects of Sault Ste. Marie was hired to research and organize information for each of the 10 chapters. The firm is completing drafts a few chapters at a time and then presenting them to the board for approval. At last Wednesday's meeting, John Rowe and Tim Pace presented four rough draft chapters to the board that included land use, population, housing, and economic development.

The land use chapter, said Mr. Rowe, particularly zoning in the county, will be explained mostly by maps that have yet to be finished. The board requested the firm acknowledge all cemeteries in the county by proper name and township. The draft chapter recognized 24 sites, however, board members said there are a few missing from the list.

Information for the chapter on population, said Mr. Rowe, came from 1990 and 2000 census data.

For The Record

In the May 14 issue of the Town Crier, in the article titled "Islanders' Comments on Luggage Carts," Marti Carey received an attribution as the owner of Cloghaun Inn. She is not the owner, she is the manager.

In the May 21 issue, a story entitled, "Free Friday Dinners Return for Employees," which ran on page 22, should have contained the names of following businesses as having contributed to the dinners: Carriage Tours, Yankee Rebel Tavern, Horn's Bar, Mustang Lounge, Astor Street Cafe, Chippewa Hotel, Village Inn, Patrick Sinclair's Irish Pub, Pilot House, Dockside, The Island House, Mackinac Island Yacht Club, French Outpost, Doud's Mercantile, Grand Hotel, Murray Hotel, and Iroquois Hotel.

In the June 3 issue, in the article on new events for the Lilac Festival titled "Lilac Fairy is Theme for Festival's Grand Parade," page 7, it was reported that people attending the Art of Entertaining will decorate and keep a 10-inch cake. It should be a 5-inch cake, and the Tourism Bureau's Web site is www.mackinacisland.org, not www.mackinac.com.

Also in the June 3 issue, in the article on the Dog and Pony Club on page 7, Sara Chambers' name was incorrectly spelled Sarah.
