

City Cemetery Work Planned

Projects in store for the two city cemeteries, according to Smi Horn, a member of the Cemetery Board, include extending of the outer stone wall of Ste. Anne's cemetery and refurbishing the gate at the Mackinac Island Cemetery.

The Anthonys first owned the Windermere Hotel as a summer home, selling it to Patrick Doud. They moved around Lake Shore road to the home now owned by W.S. Woodfill.

Mr. Anthony is 75 years old and his arrival here brought back old memories of days gone by. While here he donated wreaths for the Catholic and Protestant cemeteries in memory of old and departed friends. The Island was happy to welcome Mr. Anthony back "home."

35 Years Ago Thursday, August 20, 1970

Crew members of the Chippewa rescued a family of four persons Sunday afternoon after their 17-foot outboard started taking water and floundered in the four foot seas a mile west of Mackinac Island.

Capt. Jim Brown reported he sighted the family waving in distress when he was making his "1630 run to St. Ignace." He immediately called the Coast Guard in St. Ignace and then took the Chippewa the half mile over to the sinking outboard. Alert crew members making the dramatic rescue were Joe Matelski, Tim Harrington, and Norm Casey, the ship's engineer.

Mary Ravenscroft left Thursday for Guam, where she has accepted a two-year teaching contract. Mary spent the past 10 years teaching in the Mackinac Island Public School, and her host of friends wish her good luck in her new assignment.

10 Years Ago

August 12 - August 18, 1995
Mackinac Island Planning Commission voted 5-3-1 before a standing-room-only audience to recommend that the minimum rental period for residences be set at 30 days. The action will force home and apartment owners to quit daily and weekly rentals to tourists.

One hundred bottles of beer off the wall later, Stacy Jankowski recently became the first member of the Dockside Bar & Grill's Beer Club. The 23-year-old line cook's slow but steady, summer-long quaffing of porters, ales, and stouts underscores a trend among 21 to 30-year-olds. John Armstrong, manager of the Dockside, has capitalized on the fad. Business, he said, is up 60 percent over the last year because of the restaurant's new beer program, which offers 136 varieties.

Doud column — We have a mounted police officer in town. He is Michigan State Trooper Mike Powell, who can be seen policing the Island astride his horse, "Lucky."
