

New Plans Are Keeping Streets Cleaner

said the sweeper does not push the waste onto the roadside. Sweeper operators lower sweeper brushes as they become worn, he said, but improper adjustment can lead to the problem. He will make sure brushes are checked daily, he told the committee.

"We're going to make some adjustments" said Mayor Margaret Doud. "We're going to put some people in the Village" of Harrisonville. She also said manure should be brought directly to the solid waste facility and not stored.

At the April meeting, Mr. Parel told Mayor Doud he would continue to come to the Street Committee meetings until street cleaning issues were resolved. He suggested that the city consider putting diapers on the horses, as is done in New York City and Chicago.

During a follow-up meeting on the street cleaning issue Thursday, May 24, Mr. Parel said he had seen positive changes in cleaning. Manure now is going to the solid waste facility, he said, rather than being piled in the Edgewood area.

He is not the only resident concerned about clean streets, he told the committee. Also, he said Harrisonville still needs workers with brooms and shovels sweeping in the area.

"I think that we're making progress," said Mayor Doud. "I think every little bit is better and we're pointed in the right direction."

By early June, a portable flusher will be used on problem areas on Main Street and side streets, said Dr. Chambers. The streets will be flushed with a high pressure hose throughout the day, as needed. Early spring flushing takes longer because sand accumulates in street crevices over the winter.

Once the flushing operation begins, hosing should improve within a week, he said, adding, "The more you flush, the easier it is."

Committee member Armin Porter asked for increased attention to flushing near Shepler's Dock on Main Street, where horse manure and urine accumulate.

One Stroke Wins It for Wawashkamo Scramble Top Team

Callewaert, Borst, Reid, Sparkman Take 1st

Only one stroke separated the top three teams vying for first place at the opening spring golf scramble at Wawashkamo Saturday, June 2. The scramble drew 36 players.

A tie for first place with 60 strokes each was broken using the score from the hole that earned the most strokes.

The winning team of Todd Callewaert, Billy Borst, Orv

Reid, and Tom Sparkman each received $75 in credit at the Wawashkamo golf shop.

Second place finishers Ron Dufina, Randy Stuck, Doug Rearick, and Rusty Preston each received a golf shop credit of $60.

With a score of 61 and coming in third place were David Levy, Dan Murch, Ron Morden, and Richard Blake. Each player received $45 in credit at the golf shop.

Coming in first for the Ladies Flight with a score of 72 was the team of Lin Sheppard, Michelle Stuck, and Kay Berke. They each received a $55 golf shop credit.

Second place at 74, was the team of Sue Chambers, Sandra Orr, and Debra Orr. A $35 golf shop credit was given to them.

Other games on the course included closest to the pin in three shots on hole nine was the team of Sandra Orr, Debra Orr, and Sue Chambers.

For men, closest to the pin in three shots on hole five was the team of Todd Callewaert, Tom Sparkman, Orv Reid, and Billy Borst. Closest to the pin in three shots on hole 10 was the team of Clark Bloswick, Larry Rickley, Gary Horn, and Sean Preston.

Closest to the pin on hole four for men was Clark Bloswick and closest to the pin on hole 17 was Jack Dehring.
