

Shepler's Captain Rescues Teen From Water

Eric Heffernan, a captain for Shepler's Mackinac Island Ferry, saved a teenage girl from drowning after she fell under the gangway while the boat was docked on Mackinac Island Monday, July 14.

As the young girl was walking off the boat with a group, she accidentally stepped between the boat and the dock and fell into the water. Capt. Heffernan said she hung onto a dock structural beam just above the water until she was rescued.

Capt. Heffernan, with assistance from another Shepler's captain, Mark Ingilis, and one of the group's chaperones, pulled the girl from the water.

Other than being a little shaken up, cold, and wet, the girl reportedly received only a scratch on her leg from the fall.

"I let her wear my captain's vest for the day to keep warm," said Capt. Heffernan.

Eric Heffernan, originally from Farmington Hills and now living in St. Ignace, has been a captain for Shepler's for the past nine years.

Author Barbara Burkhardt To Speak at Library

Writer Barbara Burkhardt will visit the Mackinac Island Public Library to present "Conversations with William Maxwell" Friday, August 8, at 4 p.m. as part of the library's summer lecture series.

Dr. Burkhardt was a close acquaintance of William Maxwell, a longtime fiction editor at The New Yorker. She conducted extensive interviews with Mr. Maxwell; he died at 91 in July 2000. The resulting book, "William Maxwell: A Literary Life," was the first major critical study of the Illinois writer's life and work, and has been praised by publications such as The Washington Post, USA Today, and Publishers Weekly.

Since 2001, Dr. Burkhardt has been a faculty member at the University of Illinois at Springfield, where she teaches graduate seminars on postmodern fiction, Mark Twain, and writers of The New Yorker, as well as classes on the American novel, Midwestern literature, and American women writers. She holds a doctorate in American literature from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign and a master's degree in English from the University of Illinois at Springfield.
